Soldiers from the 3rd Sustainment Bde., were honored during a ceremony at Taylor's Creek Elementary School, April 11. The event was to show the school's appreciation for the help the unit has given it as part of the 3rd Infantry Division's Adopt-a-School Program.

The students of Taylor's Creek Elementary School honored the Soldiers of the 3rd Infantry Division, 3rd Sustainment Brigade, Special Troops Battalion with banners and drawings April 11.

The school is part of a community outreach program that Maj. Gen. Rick Lynch, 3rd Inf. Div. commander, initiated.

Soldiers from a battalion go to the school they're assigned to participate and facilitate activities such as dances, after-school tutoring and reading stories.

"It's hard to find monitors and the state requires monitors," said Donna W. Sinrich, school counselor. "We really appreciate all the help."

To show their appreciation for all the Soldier's hard work and dedication, the children of Taylor's Creek Elementary School wanted to present the Soldiers of 3rd Sustainment Bde. with a special ceremony.

Lt. Col. Douglas McBride, commander of the 3rd Sustainment Bde., and school's sponsor, led Soldiers down the road as children lined each side of the street to cheer for them. The Soldiers gave hugs and high fives to children as they proceeded past them.

I want to say, 'Hooah!'" said McBride to the school as he spoke through the intercom. "On behalf of myself and the entire Special Troops Battalion, I want to thank the Taylor's Creek faculty and its students."

McBride went on to say that upon assignment to Taylor's Creek Elementary School, he and STB Command Sgt. Maj. Robert Tolbert came down to the school and met with Debbie Rodriguez, school principal.

From there, the school and the STB embarked upon an unbelievable relationship with a goal to ensure the children had all the resources they needed to achieve scholastically.

Also, he wanted the children to have a sense of community and a sense for what the Soldiers do militarily to support the community.

"The Soldiers have worked so hard on a variety of events for the school," said Rodriguez. "We really just wanted to do something special for them."

McBride wished each and every student good luck and that he wants nothing but 100 percent from everyone.

Soldiers are there every week. Although the STB is deploying soon, it would not forget about the promise made to the school and to the children.

Chapel activity encourages Families to consider summer camps

Nondice Powell
Hunter Army Airfield Public Affairs

As summer approaches, so does the opportunity for children to go to camp. Pamela Perez, pastoral and religious education coordinator at the Hunter Chapel, is trying to spread the word to Soldiers and their Families about free opportunities.

"We have VBS (Vacation Bible School) at the chapel and the Fresh Air Home," said Perez. "The Fresh Air Home is at Tybee (Island)."

Vacation Bible School is open to military card holders. There are slots for fifteen children in each age group; kindergarten, through sixth. Vacation Bible School runs June 11-15 and is from 9 a.m. to noon each day. Perez wants to encourage those with a deployed Family member and other military card holders to sign-up beginning Sunday.

"We're trying to keep them involved enough to keep them here and create a bond and support group," said Perez. "A lot of Family members go back home during deployments because they don't know what's available to them."

The Fresh Air Home is run by the Froebel Circle. According to the Fresh Air Home Web site, www.thefreshairhome.com, Nina Pape, a civic leader and founder of Pape School, organized the Froebel Circle in May of 1897. The first session for campers took place in July of that year.

"The Froebel Circle is a group of 50 women," said Perez. "A lot of their husbands or sons were military. This is a way for them to give back."

The Circle has a history of giving back to the community since the start of the Fresh Air Home.

The goal of the Circle is to increase the health and happiness of children, and at no cost to the Families. According to the Web site, the home was used during World War I by the Red Cross as a school. After being left $10,000 in 1932, the home was able to operate during the Depression. During that time, they cared for and provided assistance to 127 babies, 60 older children and 29 mothers.

The current members of the Circle continue the tradition of providing for children.

The four sessions this year are June 4-15, June 18-28, July 2-13 and July 16-27. The camp is open to children ages four-11. Call 786-4886 for an application.

"You can feel the love there with what they are doing," said Perez, who recently visited the home. "It's fun for the children, and also gives the parents a bit of a break, time to do something for themselves. They, the women of the Circle, are just filled with so much love for these children. It's just impressive."

Children are provided with everything they need while at the camp. All the clothing and personal items they need are provided by the camp. Activities include trips to the beach, Fort Pulaski, Savannah Sand Gnats' baseball games, and much more. The children also take part in crafts, games, music activities and Bible stories.

"It's all free which is a big plus," said Perez. "Everything is donated."

Perez hopes to find more opportunities for Soldiers and their Families and encourages all to get involved with the organizations and groups available in the area. For more information contact Perez at 315-5440.

B-2 stealth bomber appears, wows audience at Vidalia Airshow

Lt. Col. Sean L. Clark
3220th Garrison Support Unit Public Affairs

More than 40,000 spectators came to watch parachutists jump, acrobatic pilots perform loops, rolls and spins, and to view our current military pilots and their machines fly displaying the capabilities of our armed forces.

Fort Stewart Soldiers had an opportunity to attend the Vidalia Airshow for free as tickets were donated to the Morale Welfare and Recreation for Active Duty military.

This year's Vidalia Airshow was dedicated to the memory of Lieutenant Commander Kevin Davis of the United States Navy's Blue Angels, who died while performing a week earlier at the Beaufort Marine Corp Air Station Airshow, April 21.

Saturday's attendees were provided an additional thrill courtesy of the United States Air Force, when a B-2 Spirit Bomber made several photo passes. It is still a rare and special treat to have a stealth bomber make an appearance at an air show.

One of the most historic displays came in what is known as the Heritage Flight--a showcase of both a current U.S. Air Force fighter, flying formation with a World War II fighter. In this case, the A-10 Thunderbolt II was teamed up with the legendary P-51 Mustang.

Lee Lauderback, pilot of the P-51 Mustang "Crazy Horse" flew up from Kissimmee, Fl. Lee was in the first group of ten civilian and former military pilots selected by the Air Force to participate in the Heritage Flight Program.

"It's obvious why we conduct the Heritage Flights: to showcase the history and contributions our military aviation has made during the past sixty years," Lee said. "Our military pilots have been flying most of the world's best aircraft since WWII."

The Vidalia Airshow opened each day with the U.S. Army's Special Operations Command "Black Daggers" Parachute Demonstration Team.

The skies remained full of various acrobatic performers and military jets. However, not all the action was in the sky.

There was a static airplane display and dozens of vendors selling an assortment of t-shirts, airplane models, food, refreshments and yes- the delicious Vidalia onions.

The Vidalia 'ground show' included Bill Braack driving the U.S. Air Force Jet Car approaching speeds of nearly 400 miles per hour in about five seconds.

Attendees were also treated to the motorcycle stunts and jumps performed by the World Extreme Motocross Stunt Team. For a few extra dollars, you could ride on a Monster Truck or take a ride in a helicopter.

"Our show stands out because it is a small, more intimate show, but we still attract the best performers in the business," said Andy Kimbell, a Vidalia Airshow Committee Member.

Jackie, of Jackie B Airshows, flew her Pitts Special all the way from San Francisco, Calif. supporting Andy's claim.

"Our crowd line is placed closer to the fans than the majority of shows in the country, which allows the fans to be so close they can literally 'feel the heat' when the jets blast by," Andy said.

"More than the jet blast, I was totally impressed by the propwash created by Lee Lauderback and the P-51 Mustang" said Air Force Major Jeff Youst flying the A-10 Thunderbolt three feet off the Mustang's wing. "You can truly experience the best display of America's fighter superiority."

Young also appreciated the crew members.

"Lest we not forget all the crew chiefs, such as Willie (with the P-51) and Tony (with the A-10) who keep them in such great flying condition. Thanks Lee and Jeff, for sharing the Heritage Flight experience! To all the other pilots and performers: a job well done," he said

The Vidalia Onion Festival and Airshow are scheduled the last weekend of April every year. The Airshow Committee would like the Soldiers and Families of Fort Stewart and Hunter Army Airfield to know how much the Vidalia community appreciates the sacrifices.

Vidalia Airshow Committee will again be providing free advance tickets for Active Duty military members through the MWR offices next year.

Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles

Friday — 6 p.m.

May 10 — 7 p.m.

(Patrick Stewart, Sarah Michelle Gellar)

After the defeat of their old arch nemesis, The Shredder, the Turtles have grown apart as a family. Struggling to keep them together, their rat sensei, Master Splinter, becomes worried when strange things begin to brew in New York City. Tech-industrialist Max Winters is amassing an army of ancient monsters to apparently take over the world. And only one super-ninja fighting team can stop them—those heroes in a half shell—Leonardo, Michelangelo, Donatello and Raphael!

With the help of old allies April O'Neil and Casey Jones, the Turtles are in for the fight of their lives as they once again must face the mysterious Foot Clan, who have put their own ninja skills behind Winters' endeavors.

The Last Mimzy

Friday, Saturday — 8:30 p.m.

(Rhiannon Leigh Wryn, Rainn Wilson)

Two children discover a mysterious box that contains some strange devices they think are toys. As the children play with these "toys," they begin to display higher and higher intelligence levels. Their teacher tells their parents that they seem to have grown beyond genius. Their parents, too, realize something extraordinary is happening. Emma, the younger of the two, tells her confused mother that one of the toys, a beat-up stuffed toy rabbit, is named Mimzy and that "she teaches me things."

As Emma's mom becomes increasingly concerned, a blackout shuts down the city and the government traces the source of the power surge to Emma's family's house.

Things quickly spin wildly out of their control.

Pride

May 10 — 7 p.m.

(Terrence Howard, Bernie Mac)

The year is 1973, and Jim Ellis, a college-educated African-American, can't find a job. Driven by his love of competitive swimming, Jim converts an abandoned recreational pool hall in a Philadelphia slum with the help of Elston, a local janitor.

But when city officials mark the new Philadelphia Department of Recreation for demolition, Jim fights back--by starting the city's first African-American swim team. Recruiting troubled teens from the streets, Jim struggles to transform a motley team of novices into capable swimmers--all in time for the upcoming state championships.

But as racism, violence and an unsympathetic city official threaten to tear the team apart, Jim must do everything he can to convince his swimmers that victory, both in and out of the pool, is within their reach.

Live lives of integrity, God knows true character

CHAPLAIN'S CORNER

Chap. (Capt.) Tom Allen

I have always been told that "circumstances do not create character, they reveal them."

Who we really are is exposed and revealed in the most trying of circumstances. We in the military are living in the midst of troubled times that reveal our character.

What does God expect from us in these trying and turbulent times? How does He expect us to live in these difficult moments? We have all felt the stress and the strain that constant deployments have had on our Families and our personal lives. What is God looking for in our lives in these trying times?

When God called Samuel to go to the house of Jesse and anoint a new king, Samuel thought he knew what God wanted. In his own mind he thought Eliab, one of Jesse's sons, was the clear choice. Listen to what the Lord said to Samuel in 1 Samuel 16:7 concerning Eliab: "Do not look at his appearance or at the height of his stature, because I have rejected him; for God sees not as man sees, for man looks at the outward appearance, but the LORD looks at the heart."

That's a pretty clear picture of what's important to God.

Reputation is what others think you are, but character is what God knows you are. Since most people see what we are before hearing what we say, we must be very careful to live genuine lives.

We must be true not only on the surface but in the innermost parts. We must live lives of integrity.

Integrity means that we are the same on the inside as on the outside. It means that our private lives match our public image. There must be no discrepancy between our walk and our talk. We all have a reputation among those around us, what others think we are really like, but God knows our true character. God knows what we are really like on the inside.

It's not important that we are perfect, just that we are honest. If you struggle, don't act like you don't. If you live with doubt, don't act like you have perfect faith.

If you struggle with fear don't act like you're never afraid. If you're really lonely don't act like you have no problem making it alone. It is easy to project an image of integrity and character. But God requires "truth in the innermost parts" (Psalms 51:6)

We must not be satisfied with a good reputation; we must seek genuine godly character. Only then will we be people of real integrity.

Glennville to host Sweet Onion Run, parade and festival

Soldiers and Families get in free with military ID

Special to the Frontline

The 31st annual Glennville Sweet Onion Festival on Saturday, May 12, in Glennville, Ga., promises to be a grand event to top even the previous 30 years. Start the day off with a one-mile fun run at 8 a.m., and followed by a 3.1-mile run at 8:30 a.m.

Festival gates open at the State Farmers' Market on Hwy. 301. South will feature several shriners units, floats, and a few unusual entries. James E. Donald, commissioner of the Georgia Department of Corrections, will lead the parade as Grand Marshal.

The festival features over a hundred arts and crafts exhibitors with a superb variety sure to please anyone to include moms, dads and children too. Entertainment will also be presented throughout the afternoon.

Be sure to watch the World Champion turtle races, "spider bungee" jump (safe for young children), in addition to children's games, face painting, pony rides, "rock climbing," and a bounce house.

A dance begins at 9 a.m. at the State Farmer's Market.

Dennis and the Menace, of the Brunswick area, will entertain with a variety of music.

Festival admission is $5 for adults and $3 for children. There is no charge to military with identification cards or their Families.

Dance admission is $12 each or $20 per couple in advance, or $15 each at the gate Saturday night.

For a fantastic Family fun-filled day, come to Glennville on Saturday, May 12. For more information, call Wayne Dasher at 654-3332 or Pam Waters at 654-2515.

Register now or at gate to participate in 5K, one-mile race

Special to the Frontline

It's onion time again and that means it's time to get out your running shoes. The Glennville Sweet Onion Run will be held May 12. All race activities are headquartered at First Citizens Bank on Highway 301 in Glennville.

The one mile run/walk begins at 8 a.m. with an 8:30 a.m. start for the five kilometer race.

You can enter both events for one fee. The entry fee is $14 for preregistered participants, $16 the day of the race.

There is a special rate for Families, with participants with one or both parents and their immediate children up to six people, for $45. The coordinators reserve the right to deny questionable requests. Registration opens the day of the event from 7-7:45 a.m., May 12.

Timers are at the finish line. Be sure to get your place card immediately after you cross the finish line.

The age categories for the races are five and under, six to seven-years-old, eight to 10, 11-14, 15-18, 19-21, 22-29, 30-39, 40-49, 50-59, 60-69, and 70-79.

Awards for the races include trophies for the top three overall finishers for male and female one milers; top three male and female five kilometer finishers; and top two master male and female finishers in the 5K race. Medals will be awarded to the first and second place finishers for all age groups in the one mile and five-kilometer categories. The first 100 applicants and/or pre-registered participants will receive the Sweet Onion T-Shirt. For more information, call Tabitha Smith at 654-1457.

West Chatham Elementary School thanks 4/3 Avn Soldiers for support

Pfc. Monica Smith
CAB Public Affairs

Soldiers from 3rd Battalion, 4th Aviation Regiment were honored Monday for their volunteer work at the West Chatham Elementary School in Savannah. The school provided the Soldiers an opportunity to speak in classes as a part of Career Awareness Week.

In addition, several students at school performed the Mexican Hat Dance for members of 4/3 Avn., who helped the school as part of the Division's Adopt-A-School program.

Student technician Parker Bass, 3rd grader at West Chatham Elementary caught the event on camera as part of their student run morning news broadcast.

The Soldiers showed their appreciation for the student's gesture. Lt. Col. Adrian Ferrall presented the school principal, Susan Creech, a certificate for their participation in an adopt-a-school program

Arts, Entertainment: Cop movies, the British are coming

Commentary

Ever since I first saw William Shatner as "T.J. Hooker" hanging stubbornly to the front end of a criminal's getaway car during a high speed chase scene, I've been in love with both small and large screen cops. I may have been just four-years-old at the time, but even then I could recognize hard hitting television. Ok, so I'm having a little fun at Shatner's expense, but so is everyone else in the media industry, Priceline commercials not excluded. And, in similar spirit, new release "Hot Fuzz" pokes clever jest at the police film genre in general. You shouldn't miss this outstanding British comedy.

It all started with a little English film called "Shaun of the Dead." The film, written by and starring comedian Simon Pegg, deliciously spoofs the hundreds of zombie movies coloring the cinema industry with groaning and teeth marks. "Shaun..." became an instant cult classic for its characters and unique story.

With "Hot Fuzz," Simon Pegg and company do it again. This time the outlandishly action packed cop movie genre is the target of the parody. "Fuzz" employs many of the same actors as starred in "Shaun..." Nick Frost returns as the hilarious, portly, sidekick and the dashing Bill Nighy ("Love Actually", "Pirates of the Caribbean: Dead Man's Chest", "The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Galaxy") grins through his brief return appearance. The similarities between Shaun and Fuzz don't end there. The main character, though not the same guy (Pegg is Officer Nick Angel this time), still has problems with his love interest, still called Liz, and there is a repeat of the very funny garden fence jumping sequence. What, haven't you ever taken a short cut before?

For me, "Hot Fuzz" is the better film of the pair. Comic skill seems refined and honed. This bunch is fast becoming experts. The sharp filmmaking and the jabs at the American-buddy-movie-with-badges-genre is silly when necessary, but also very smart.

While watching the escapades of unfortunate top cop Nick Angel as he's cast out of London and exiled to quiet country life, you never feel your intelligence being insulted. You leave the theatre delighted and fully ready to view a third masterpiece. And until the team reunites to deliver that, we're already being promised another opportunity to see Pegg in the David Schwimmer directed comedy "Run, Fat Boy, Run."

In music news, British policemen aren't the only ones invading the U.S. right now. The English musicians are also coming. They are coming, and staying at the top of hit lists put out by media journalists.

Blender magazine writer Jon Dylan had this to say about British pop group Arctic Monkeys, "England's cheeky young hit makers follow their massively hyped debut with an album that's smaller, frostier—and snarls at hipsters. The band has often cited a hip-hop influence, and...forsakes indie rock's verse-chorus catharsis to pile explosive segments of surf rock or New Wave or indie rock on top of each other, more like the work of a DJ than a band."

Music editor of www.musicomh.com, John Murphy writes this of UK by way of Beirut pop musician Mika, "Insanely catchy

[with] more than a hint of 'Queen' in there...ultimately this is uplifting, joyous pop."

"Yours Truly, Angry Mob," is the new album from the Kaiser Chiefs. Ted Kord of www.amazon.com, praised the piece as, "fantastically-titled [and] full of radio-friendly, hook-ridden tunes that mask cunningly subversive lyrics...much of which is satire wrapped up in potential singles."

Lastly, Christian Hoard of www.rollingstone.com describes British trio Keane's new album "Under the Iron Sea" as, "outfitted with darker, less immediately accessible songs and bigger doses of atmospheric keyboard, but it offers some of the same tuneful pleasures as the debut, with big-voiced Tom Chaplin digging into his big bag of swooning choruses...But depending on your taste for high romance, it either adds up to heart-tugging pop or nice dinner music."

You be the judge. Try out an album from across the pond today.
